The UN Role in Promoting Democracy - Between Ideals and Reality

Edited by Edward Newman and Roland Rich

The UN Role in Promoting Democracy - Between Ideals and Reality

Table of Contents

THEMATIC PAPERS

Introduction: Approaching Democratisation Policy
Roland Rich  Edward Newman
Director, Centre for Democratic Institutions  Academic Officer
Australian National University  United Nations University

International Organisations and Democracy Promotion: Theoretical dimensions
Laurence Whitehead
Official Fellow, Nuffield College
Oxford University

The Promotion of Democracy, International Law and Norms
Tom J. Farer
Dean, Graduate School of International Studies
University of Denver
Crafting Security Council Mandates
Roland Rich
Director, Centre for Democratic Institutions
Australian National University

Transitional Authorities: Achieving Consultation and Accountability
Simon Chesterman
Senior Associate
International Peace Academy

Elections in Post-Conflict Societies
Benjamin Reilly
Bureau for Development Policy
United Nations Development Programme

Perspectives from the United Nations

United Nations Democracy Promotion: Comparative Advantages and Constraints
Edward Newman
Academic Officer
United Nations University

The UN’s Electoral Assistance: Challenges, Accomplishments, Prospects
Robin Ludwig
Senior Political Affairs Officer
Department of Political Affairs, UN

UN System Experience in Long-Term Democracy Assistance
Richard Ponzio
United Nations Development Programme

Case Studies

The United Nations and Namibia’s Transition to Democracy
Henning Melber
Research Director
The Nordic Africa Institute

The UN’s Modest Impact on Cambodian Democracy
Sorpong Peou
Associate Professor of Political Science
Sophia University, Tokyo
Kosovo: A Permanent International Protectorate?
Ylber Hysa
Director, Kosova Action for Civic Initiatives (KACI)

Delivering Feudal Democracy in East Timor
Tanja Hohe
Visiting Fellow, The Watson Institute for International Studies
Brown University

The UN and Democratization in Afghanistan
Amin Saikal
Director, Centre for Arab & Islamic Studies
Australian National University